To whom it may concern,

My husband and I have been listening and supporting K Love and Air1 for many years now. These stations provide so much more than "Christian" music. Now a days all you hear on secular stations is how many spouses are cheating on each other, or who has the deepest secret to spill, etc. Instead of filling my head with junk like this, it is such a blessing that I have the option to turn on a station which actually encourages me to do right, listen to positive music, and be filled with God's love all day long. My husband and I are in our mid twenties and we have witnessed in our own lives how important these stations are to us that we make a point to financially support them on a monthly basis for the fact to keep them on the air. It is crazy to me to think the FCC would want to put such heavy restrictions on stations that promote doing good and lift peoples spirits, to the point it would forever change how Christian radio is broadcast. You would think they would instead go after the music and talk shows that do the exact opposite.

We are very much opposed to the rules the FCC is trying to regulate. As for the free speech we are "supposedly" entitled to, if a person chooses not to listen to Christian radio, by all means that is their right but please do not take away or minimize the right we have in speaking about the most important aspect in our lives.

Thank you for taking the time to read our comment.
